

Project update – Proposed intersection improvements at Narellan Road and Appin Road, Campbelltown

The NSW Government is funding this proposal as part of its $300 million Urban Roads Pinch Points Program, which aims to reduce congestion and improve travel times on Sydney’s busiest road corridors.

Roads and Maritime Services invited feedback in April and May 2017 on proposed intersection improvements at Narellan Road and Appin Road, Campbelltown.

The intersection improvements also included a pedestrian crossing on Appin Road which was not detailed in our original proposal description. We apologise for any inconvenience caused and have included an updated project map with the pedestrian crossing.

The improvements are located south of upgrades currently being carried out on Narellan Road and north of safety improvements recently completed on Appin Road.

Community Consultation

We received feedback from 11 community members, three of which supported parts of the proposal. Key areas of interest for community members included features of the proposal, traffic lights, accessibility to Hyde Parade from Narellan Road and pedestrian crossings.

We have directly responded to all community members and thank everyone for considering the proposal and providing feedback.

What happens next?

Following the review of this feedback, we have decided to further develop our proposal.

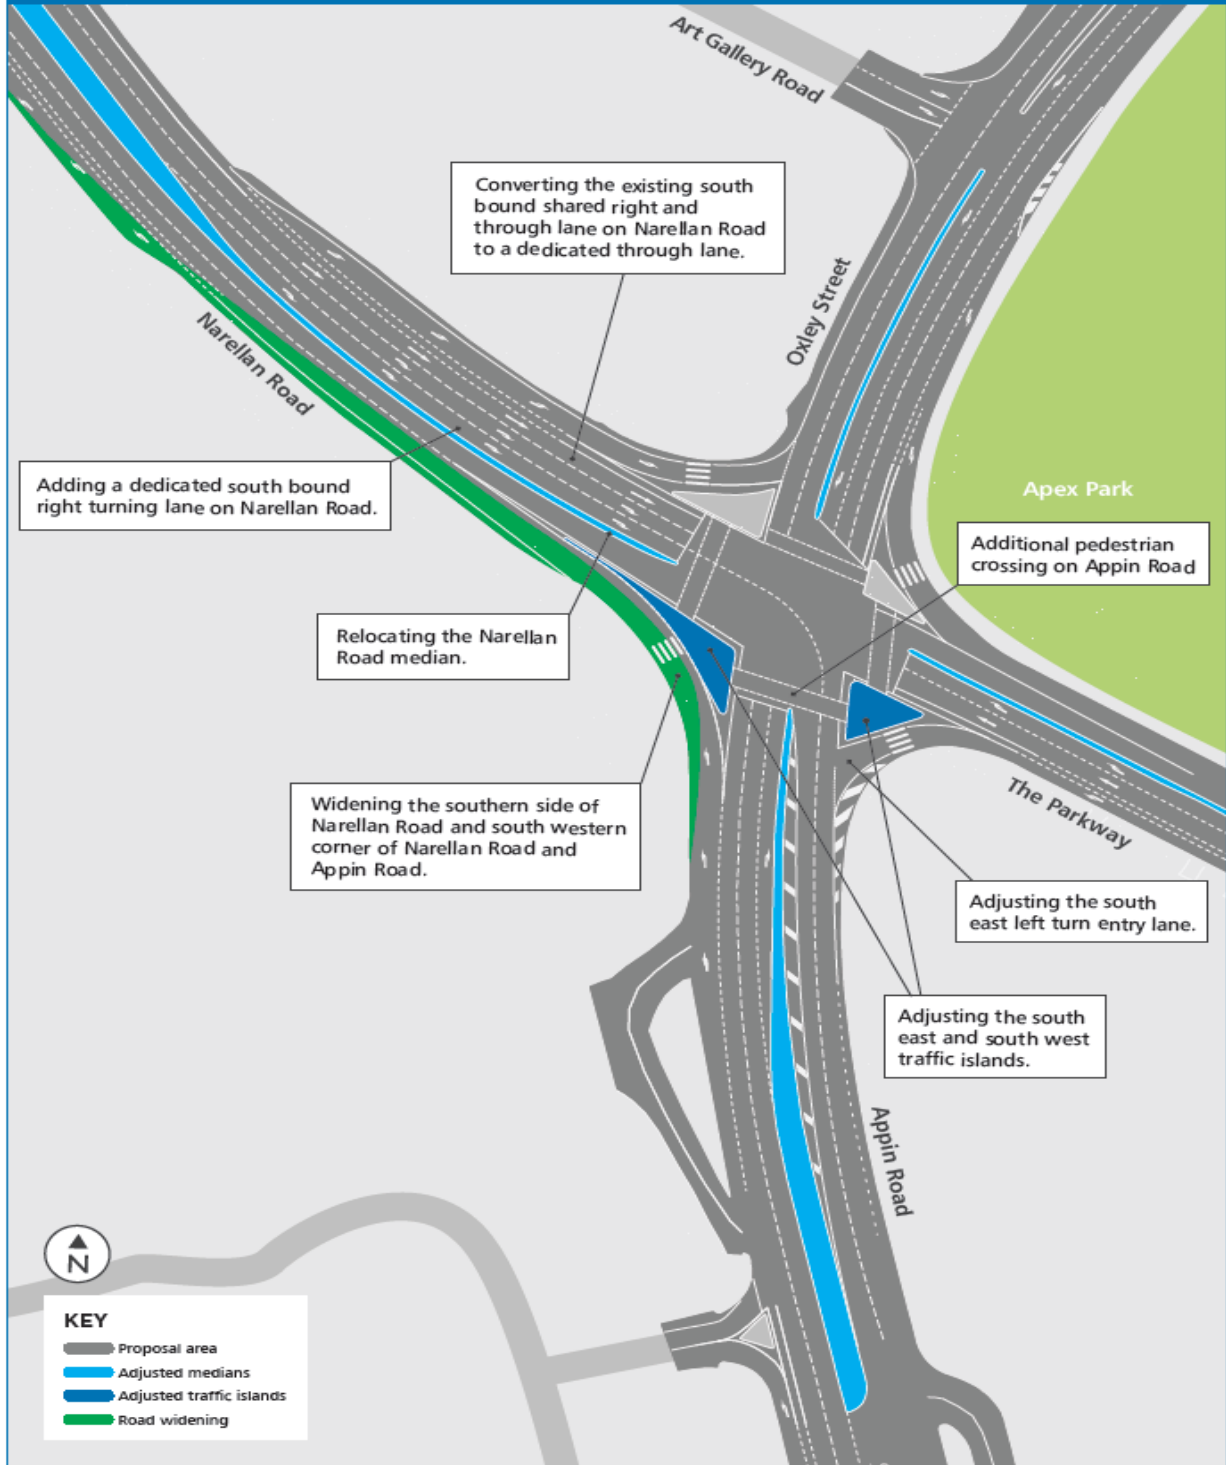

We will continue to update you as we progress with the project.
